JONAH GOLDBERG

Conservative Journalist and Online Pioneer

Jonah Goldberg is one of the most prominent young conservative journalists on the scene today. Goldberg is a contributing editor to National Review and was the founding editor of National Review Online, for which he still writes a popular feature, "The Goldberg File." Jonah Goldberg is also a nationally syndicated columnist whose work appears regularly in the Philadelphia Inquirer, Kansas City Star, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Washington Times, and Manchester Union Leader.

Goldberg's columns and articles have rapidly generated a large readership, in part due to his success at blending humor and hard-hitting insights.

Goldberg is currently a member of the Board of Contributors to USA Today. In the past he's served as a media critic for both Brill's Content and The American Enterprise and as a Washington columnist for the Times of London. He has written about politics and culture for the New Yorker, the Wall Street Journal, the LA Times, Commentary, the Public Interest, the Wilson Quarterly, the Weekly Standard, Slate, TheStreet.com, the New York Post, Women's Quarterly and Food and Wine.

Goldberg is a regular political commentator on CNN, and has served as a guest host on Crossfire and as a regular panelist on Wolf Blitzer's Late Edition. Other television appearances include Good Morning America, Larry King Live, Today, Nightline, Hardball with Chris Matthews, Politically Incorrect, Special Report with Brit Hume, Geraldo, NBC Nightly News, and numerous other television and radio programs. He was senior producer of the award-winning series Think Tank with Ben Wattenberg on PBS. Also, he has written and produced several PBS documentaries and specials.

A popular speaker on college campuses, Goldberg is proof that reading and thinking about political, media, and cultural issues can be enlightening and entertaining at the same time. He is the 2001 winner of the prestigious Lowell Thomas Award.

Goldberg grew up on the liberal-occupied Upper West Side of Manhattan. He is a graduate of Goucher College, where he was one of the first men to attend the formerly all-women's college. After Goucher, he taught English in Czechoslovakia, and was later a researcher at the American Enterprise Institute in Washington, DC, where he currently resides.
